ASSEMBLYMEMBER, 18TH DISTRICT

Dear Friend:

In celebration of this year's Earth Day, Californians can be proud of the laws that protect our planet. Since the environmental movement began 36 years ago, significant progress has been made to improve the quality of California's air, water and land. In 2004, your commitment to cleaner and greener communities led the Bay Area to its cleanest air quality on record. The Legislature's top priorities continue to include improvements to secure reliable drinking water, efforts to preserve open space, urban sprawl reduction and the development of affordable housing adjacent to mass transit corridors.

While there's been much progress, today the preservation of the earth's natural resources for future generations lies in your hands. Conservation and recycling are cost effective, good for the environment, and create jobs here in California. In fact, conservation and recycling also improve children's health. Each battery recycled from radios, toys and cameras prevents toxic chemicals from seeping into the ground and contaminating drinking water.

Please review this invitation for upcoming environmental events. The events will cover legislative issues, plus information on how to use alternative energy sources, recycle household products and eliminate waste.

To learn which products are recyclable or to locate your nearest recycling center, call 1-(800) CLEAN-UP toll-free or go online at www.earth911.org or www.stopwaste.org.
